

NAGEL ADVOCATES FEDERAL CONTROL

NECESSARY TO THE COMMERCIAL
PRESERVATION OF THE U. S.

SAYS THAT IT IS LEGAL

Secretary of Commerce and Labor in Speech at Chicago Declares That Corporations Must Be Curbed.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Federal control of corporations is necessary to the commercial preservation of the country,
declared Charles Nagel, Secretary of Commerce and Labor, of the United States, in an address before the Industrial club last night.

As to the power of the national government to authorize the organization of federal corporations, Mr. Nagel said there could be no question. The existing system of chartering state laws
"is a system on all sides at war with itself," he regarded as intolerable, and he assured his hearers that the consequences of a federal corporation law
such as President Taft had proposed could make for nothing but the general good.

The purpose of the government to regulate the corporations, in the opinion of the secretary, could not be considered as an attempt to encroach upon state authority, but as a determination to "employ old authority for the solution of new problems." A change of attitude regarding the relation of national to state authority, he believed, had come over the country with the development of problems too big for the state, individually, to meet.

"Among the more important problems," said Secretary Nagel, "appears to be the question whether or not the national government may not should authorize and regulate the organization and conduct of federal corporations.
Only a few years ago the bare suggestion of such an idea filled the public with dismay. The authority was denied and the policy was questioned.
Today, the irreconcilable conflicts to which ordinary business organizations are subjected in our state have forced a general recognition that something must be done to relieve the situation.
The idea is not limited to any particular locality of our country or to any special class. From all parts, east and west, north and south, city
and country, come the suggestions that some relief upon these lines must be worked out. The proposition has now been squarely put before the country. The president of the United States has made a distinct recommendation in a message calling attention to the matter, and urging consideration of a form to which legislators and constituents may give their attention."

In considering the proposition, Secretary Nagel stated that three points
must be determined: First, the question of the government's authority;
second, the conditions which make advisable such legislation; and third, the consequences of such legislation.

"It has seemed to me from the very start," said the secretary, "on the question of authority, that no one could subject this question to a thoughtful consideration without arriving at the conclusion that the federal government undoubtedly have the authority.
From the earliest of times in which exclusive rights of commerce were considered, it was made apparent that the authority to provide for the organization of business corporations was a necessary incident to the exercise of that authority, and again and again
the supreme court has said that congress has this power."

The charge against the states that they had neglected their opportunities in dealing with the corporations, Secretary Nagel said he did not believe, but he attributed the failure of the states to cope with the commercial conditions to inability rather than to negligence.

"The plain and indisputable fact is,"
he said, "that the commerce of these organizations with which we are really concerned, has outgrown both the particular and the authority of any particular state. In other words, the individual state is vainly struggling to control conditions that extend beyond its respect to territory as well as power and the modern demand for congressional action is nothing but the plain, practical call for an authority that is equal to the occasion with which it has to deal. Realizing that we have a national commerce, we are naturally calling upon national authority to control it, and to protect it."

Secretary Nagel rectified the development of business enterprises in the country, showing the gradual growth to the big corporation and the attempts of the states to legislate and the resultant trouble because of the varying laws and he pointed particularly to one result of conditions as they existed.

"Not only is commerce subjected to inconsistent, conflicting and often destructive regulations," he said, "but the inevitable effect of such activity is to create false competition between the states at the expense of that commerce. The state of lowest standards forces the hand of all the rest. Attempts at progressive legislation are paralyzed just as one unfair competitor always lowers standards everywhere. Nor will the efforts of the several states to promote unity of legislation meet this difficulty. These efforts are most unworthy with respect to all subjects which rest with the exclusive control of the several states; as to national subjects
they are worse than useless.
"All co-operation in matter political means government, and why resort
to mere understandings without binding force among the states, when we have a common government to deal with a common cause? Why not have our federal government legislate
where our governments can only confer and recommend?"

The need and purpose of federal control of corporations, the secretary stated he believed to be simply to place a private business company in

CAIRO RIOT HAS BLOODY AFFRAY

ONE MAN KILLED AND FOUR WOUNDED.

TROOPS ARE NOW ON DUTY

Governor Orders More to the Scene
of Last Evening's Disorders.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Cairo, Ill., Feb. 18.—Alexander Halliday was killed and three persons were also wounded as a result of the attack on the jail here last night by a mob bent on lynching John Pratt and Lincoln Wilson, the negroes arrested for snatching purses from women.

The wounded are: George Walker,
correspondent of the Associated Press,
a slight wound in the leg; Samuel Wossinger, John Muloney and Horton Crosby.

The militia is now on guard about the jail and the court house and no one is allowed to enter the jail or court house yard. All is quiet this morning, but to guard against possibilities more troops have been ordered here.

The physicians at the hospital, it is declared, say Halliday's wounds are not necessarily fatal, but that his life would surely have been saved had he received immediate attention. It is also reported the coroner will order
some arrests should he find this true.

More Troops.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 18.—The sheriff at Cairo notified the adjutant general that he fears a recurrence of trouble. The militia at Springfield was immediately ordered to Cairo and the adjutant general himself has left for the scene of the trouble.

SHORTER SENTENCE FOR COUNTERFEITER

Minister, Convicted of Making Bad
Money, Will Serve Six Months
Instead of Two Years.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 18.—Rev.
James H. Rice, former pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Lincoln, Ill., who was convicted of counterfeiting and sentenced to two years in the United States penitentiary, and who appealed on the ground that the sentence was excessive, today appeared before Judge Humphrey on an order from the United States court of appeals and was sentenced to six months in the Penitentiary work-house.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE BY AN EARTHQUAKE

Island of Crote Experiences Severe Quaking of the Earth This Morning.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Cairo, Feb. 18.—A violent earthquake was experienced here at 8:38 this morning, the village of Van-petro being the most affected. The shock was accompanied with subterranean explosions. A number of the buildings in this city were badly damaged, the walls being cracked. Later reports show that Vanpetro was not destroyed as first reported. One house collapsed, burying the inmates in the ruins.

BODIES MUMMIFIED WHEN FOUND TODAY

Remains of Eleven Victims of Cherry, Illinois Disaster Brought to Surface.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Cherry, Ill., Feb. 18.—Eleven bodies of miners were recovered from the mine today. The bodies were almost perfectly mummified. They were found in the second level 200 feet from the main shaft. The men's arms were outstretched, face down, apparently having been suffocated as they ran. Four other bodies were seen in the same place and these will be brought up soon and placed beside the others in the morgue.

SKI TOURNAY AT COLERAINE, MINN.

Contestants From Many States and Foreign Countries On Hand For Championship Events.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Coleraine, Minn., Feb. 18.—Many daring ski experts who are able to slide down mountain sides at lightning speed and perform high antics in the course of their perilous journey have gathered here in readiness for the opening of the national championship ski tournament tomorrow. The contestants come from various parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan,
from Chicago, from Manitoba and eastern Canada and even from far-off Norway and are anticipated in number to insure the largest ski tournament that has ever been held since the introduction of the great winter sport in this country. The program covers two days and provides events for both amateurs and professionals. Cash prizes, together with a number of medals and valuable trophies, will be distributed among the winners.

TILLMAN'S DEATH IS TO BE LOOKED FOR

His Friends Give Up All Hopes of His Recovering From Present
Ailment.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Senator Tillman's condition is so serious this morning, it is stated by his friends, that they have given up all hope of his recovery.

Senator Tillman is suffering from a clot of blood on the brain and pressure which is producing paralysis.

New York, Feb. 18.—The Wright
Brothers, aviators, were granted a temporary injunction in the United States circuit court restraining Edward Paul-han, the French aviator, from using in his exhibition flights an aeroplane
that is alleged to be an infringement
upon the Wright flying machine patent.

Ship Sinks in Alaskan Straits.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 18.—The steamer Yucatan has been sunk in icy straits, Alaska. The 65 passengers aboard were saved.

Judge Coming Monday? Judge
Griffin will be here Monday to hear the case of P. H. Lentz vs. Martin Sprecher, an action in foreclosure of a mechanic's lien. It will probably occupy the attention of the court throughout the day. The calendar for ton-morrow's term of court will be made up after tomorrow. Thus far only eleven cases have been noticed for trial.

HARD FIGHTING REPORTED TODAY

ADVISES FROM NICARAGUA
TELL OF BATTLES TUESDAY.

INSURGENTS ARE VICTORIOUS

Drive the Government Forces From the Field and Occupy Strategic Points.

Bluefields, Nicaragua, Feb. 18.—
General Menz telegraphed from St.
Vicente, a plantation between Lamanagua and Acayagua, that he has occupied St. Vicente and held it against three attacks of the government forces on Tuesday. The fighting began at dawn and continued for five hours.

Confirmatory telegrams have been received from other provisional officials in the field, one of whom declared his belief that Bluefields will be able soon to celebrate the occupation of Acayagua.

When Gen. Menz occupied Lamanagua
a few days ago, it was reported that the enemy had been withdrawn from Acayagua and was hurrying to intercept Chamorro.

It is now explained that four hundred of the enemy upon receipt of the news of Gen. Menz's approach hastened toward St. Vicente to reoccupy the fortifications which they had erected there some time before.

However, Gen. Menz was first to reach the point of vantage, which he successfully defended. Gen. Menz and eleven, who now have three Maxim and two Hotchkiss guns, depended almost entirely upon their artillery and lost only three wounded.

The report adds that the enemy's loss is not known, which seems to indicate the government forces are still before St. Vicente and further fighting may be expected.

Gen. Matiny with three hundred provisional expected to join Gen.
Menz today.

Must Fight for Return

Hale, Lodge, and Burrows, Clapp, La Follette and Burdett All Have Cause to Brood Over Situation.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—The terms of thirty members of the United States senate, twenty-four Republicans and six Democrats, will expire in a year hence. The six Democrats in the list are Daniel of Virginia, Culbertson of Texas, Money of Mississippi, Prazier of Tennessee, Raynor of Maryland and Tallaferra of Florida.
Five of the six are slated for reelection. Daniel and Raynor have already been chosen for another term and John Sharp Williams has been selected for the seat of Senator Money.

Four of the twenty-four Republicans are slated for re-election, or probably will be re-elected unless the Democrats of his State capture the legislature. Burdett of Nebraska has distinctly been re-elected during the past year and he probably will be returned if Frank B. Kellogg, the "trust buster," keeps out of the race. Senator Beveridge will be re-elected unless the Demo-

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Feb. 18.—The boundless possibilities of the use of cement in building and kindred industries is strikingly illustrated at the Cement Products Exhibition which opened at the Coliseum today, to continue for one week. An Edison "poured" house, proclaimed by the great inventor to be the salvation of the wage-worker,
is among the most interesting features of the display. A number of

BURNS RESULT IN DEATH OF FIREMAN

Mysterious Fire in Sash and Door
Factory at Onkosh Causes
Death of One Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Onkosh, Wis., Feb. 18.—Edward Quinn, a fireman at the sash and door plant of the J. McMillan company, is dead as the result of being badly burned at an early hour this morning while attending to his duties at the plant. August Zuehlke, assistant fireman, is badly burned about the face but will recover.

The accident resulting in the fatality is the result of a sudden and peculiar fire at two o'clock this morning.
Just how the fire originated is not known and it is believed that a lighted lantern caused an explosion among the sawdust in the fire room. The financial loss is small.

ANOTHER ROAD IS BEING SURVEYED

JANESVILLE SAID TO BE ON THE ROUTE OF PROPOSED LINE.

IS REPORTED IN MADISON

Actual Field Work Said to Be Under Operation Despite the Cold Weather.

According to the Madison Journal another electric railroad is being surveyed and planned to run from Janesville to the north, passing through Edgerton, Stoughton, Madison, Middleton, Lodi and thence north to Portage, Briggsville, Friendship, Grand Rapids, Stevens Point, Wausau and Merrill.

The Madison Journal has the following to say of the proposed line:

"Surveyors for the Chicago and Wisconsin Valley Interurban railroad are working between Lodi and Madison and will reach Madison on Monday. Construction work will begin early in the spring.

The much desired interurban to the north and south will be built the coming season unless all predictions of this winter fall. Surveyors for this new line, to be known as the Chicago & Wisconsin Valley railroad, are north of the Madison city limits, coming south. They have been in the field since last November and have the route surveyed from Stevens Point to within a few miles of this city and will, so one of the officers of the company stated yesterday, be in Madison by next Monday.

The new railroad has behind it and in charge of its construction the Western Indiana Construction company, members of which company have been building railroads for nearly a quarter of a century and assure to the public the success of this project.

"The road is proposed to be an electric road which will do both a passenger and a freight business, and purposes doing up one right-of-way all of the business done by the ordinary steam road paralleled by a trolley line. It will have its through passenger and freight service and frequent interurban service between cities.

"Madisonians heartily welcome this undertaking for it will furnish for all northern Wisconsin easy means of access to the state capital.

"These interurban roads are the popular roads in the east and are great business producers for the capital cities of Springfield in Illinois and Indianapolis in Indiana. They are, too, the roads for country people. With the quick and frequent service, handling package, freight and produce, they bring the farmers' produce to the city and carry his packages home for him. Cities north of Madison are filled with enthusiasm for the new enterprise and lend assistance in every way possible.

"The surveying party, which will be in this city next week, is quite large and is in charge of Chief Engineer D. C. Dunlap, an old and experienced railroad line locator.

"In the articles of incorporation for this new railroad, filed with the secretary of state, Madison is designated at the headquarters.

DEEP WATERWAY DELEGATES MEET

ROCK RIVER IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION CONVENES.

PROJECT SEEMS ASSURED

Much Enthusiasm Shown and Leaders Are Confident That the Federal Government Will Take Favorable Action.

Delegates from every city that will be directly benefited by the proposed improvement of Rock river, were present at the meetings of the Rock River Improvement association held yesterday afternoon and evening in Rockford. All were enthusiastic and all believed implicitly that, judging from what has already been accomplished, the success of the undertaking is assured.

There has never been a larger or more enthusiastic and representative gathering held in the interest of the deep waterway project than that held yesterday. Delegates from all cities on the Rock from Madison in the north, to Moline in the south, were present and in addition to passing resolutions, listened to addresses showing that the undertaking which they were advocating, was practically feasible and would be highly profitable to the Rock River Valley as a whole.

Perhaps the most important statement taken by the association at the afternoon session in the city hall, was the adoption of a set of resolutions, introduced by Attorney T. S. Nolan of this city. These resolutions called upon the federal government for aid in surveying Rock river and preparing plans for turning the river into a deep waterway. In particular, the making of the river navigable for boats of light draft from Sterling, Ill., to this city. Also for a survey and report upon the plan of locating a reservoir at Rockton and Koshongong, and an authoritative report on what land near the river could be reclaimed from overflow.

These resolutions were unanimously adopted and copies have been sent to the United States senators from Illinois and Wisconsin and to those representatives whose districts will be benefited by the proposed improvement, including Henry Allen Cooper of Racine, James H. Davidson, John M. Nelson, Charles Welles and other United States representatives whose constituents are interested in the project.

After the afternoon session, the delegates were entertained at an elaborate banquet in Unity hall by the Rockford club after which several interesting addresses were given by prominent advocates of the deep waterway. William A. Meese of Moline, Ill., was the principal speaker and gave what is considered to be the best exposition of the advantages of the proposed undertaking in addition to setting forth what progress has already been made.

The greater portion of his address was given over to proving that, in spite of adverse opinions, the project was feasible, and that the engineering problems to be met were comparatively simple. He told what had already been accomplished by the preliminary survey, what progress had been made in winning public sentiment in order to show the members of the federal rivers and harbors committee that the people of the Rock River valley were solidly in favor of the undertaking and hinted at what progress had been made in a political way, the nature of which will probably never become public.

That the success of the work is assured, is the impression that the delegates received from his address. In proof of his prophecy, Mr. Meese stated that, as the government had already made an appropriation of $75,000 for the construction of a lock which will enable boats to pass the dam at Sterling, Ill., that this appropriation will be duplicated by others and that locks will ultimately be constructed at every dam between where the Rock empties into the Mississippi and Janesville. The appropriation for the Sterling lock was designated as an opening wedge, to be followed by other and larger appropriations as the work progresses and his success becomes more and more apparent.

Among other delegates who were heard, was Isham Randolph of Chicago, who was for fourteen years engaged in the project.

CHICAGO CUBS PLAY HERE THIS EVENING

Speedy Aggregation Which Defeated Y. M. C. A. Basketball Five Meet "Cardinals" at Rink.

The fastest game they have had so far and undoubtedly one of the best this season for the "Cardinals" team will take place this evening at the rink with the "Cubs" basketball five from the Central Y. M. C. A. The "Cubs" with a slightly different lineup, played here at the local association building during the holidays and were too swift for the lower City Y. M. C. A. players. There have been since then changes in the lineup, two of their men going to the first team of the Central association, but the squad is as fast as ever. The Edgewater Freshmen played the "Cubs" in the A. A. F. tournament held in Chicago recently and were defeated by a score of 55 to 9 in the first half. What they will be able to do against the "Cardinals" is a question, but there are many who seem to think that the locals will not be able to win this game.

Several attempts to secure teams more nearly matched with the "Cardinals" were made, but all efforts here to date have been unsuccessful. It is believed, however, that the Chicago aggregation will show the Bower City team how to play basketball.

High School Basketball Five Plays Return Game With Beloit School Squad.

The Janesville high school basketball team goes to Beloit this evening to play the Beloit high school five. The game is a return match, Beloit having played here earlier in the season. Beloit's five has defeated the previous game, but while they took their defeat like men and did not hulk about it, they are determined to give Janesville a setback in their attempt to get to the state tournament at Appleton. The friends of the Janesville players feel sure that their favorites will win, but expect the game to be very close. Beloit's five has gained considerable strength and can give a very good rub. Hemming, the center for the locals, has returned to school, but is not yet able to play. With the use of a substitute and by changing positions the Bower City five plays a good game, but they are not quite as strong as when the regular team plays. The probable lineup for the high school will be: Wilkinson, center; Murphy and Korst, forwards; Green and McDonald, guards.

A CRIMSON ELOPEMENT

Copyright 1909, by Benj. B. Hampton.

By Reginald Wright Kauffman

JCHEERFULLY admit that it is annoying," said the dean of the department, "so annoying that my admission is the only cheerful thing about it. But your son is now of age, and as, during the last four years of his minority, you supplied him with enough money to buy his cigarettes with—Mazevira, I can't see—upon my soul, Mr. Ferris, I can't see—how you can blame a college which is in Boston if the boy chooses to buy diamond necklaces for a chorus girl who is in New York."

The stout, chop-whiskered parent from Chicago held up a fat, white hand of protest.

"I put Jim in your charge," he said. "And you gave him money enough to be independent of every one," concluded the dean. "Oh, I don't mean," he explained, "that the boy neglected his work. If he had done that, or if it had come to our notice that he was leading a riotous life, he would, in the natural course of events, have been removed to you long before this. I only wish now that he had been. But so far as any of us could see, his conduct was above reproach, and that is, just what makes his present position so—so surprising."

"Well, but he is not stopping at buying diamonds. He's had the impudence, so his room-mate writes me, to propose to marry the woman."

"Really? I am sorry to hear it, but the fact doesn't alter my opinion. Personally, Mr. Ferris, I am willing to do all that I can for you, but as the lad graduated last spring, and as, a week ago, he voluntarily severed his connection with the graduate school, I must insist that the university is no longer in any wise responsible."

"I don't care who's responsible," declared Mr. Ferris, "so long as I can keep my son from marrying a music-hall singer!" With which remark he bounced out of the office and boarded a car for his downtown hotel.

Meanwhile, in a typical study not a thousand yards from where he been talking, a distressingly somber couple—a tall, broad-shouldered, blond lad and a slip of a dark-eyed girl—were clasping hands across a flat-topped desk and looking long into each other's somewhat frightened face.

"I really believe you're sorry," said the boy in a thoroughly masculine endeavor to conceal his own weakness by accusing his comrade.

But his comrade was not so to be cornered. "You know I'm not, Jim," she reproachfully replied. "Only—"

He pressed her hand encouragingly, and with that pressure her face cleared.

"Only nothing," she laughed up at him. He bent far across the desk to kiss her, brushing aside a neglected volume on petrography that fell with a regretful thud to the floor.

"But it is a risky thing," she added. "Was, not is," Jim stoutly corrected. "I can make it all right now in fifteen minutes, and there is only one thing in the whole day that I am going to regret."

"What's that?" she asked with puckered brow. "That it has all probably to be spoiled by having to sit out in the Stadium and watch Yale win."

"But you forgot that I'm a Yale girl."

"Impossible," he declared. "Your gown is not blue and—"

—he sprang around the table and caught her in his arms—"your cheeks are crimson."

She struggled vainly.

we were starting for the field. There, now! Please don't say more. Just suppose somebody came!"

"They're all too wrapped up in the game. But who cares, anyhow?"

Evidently he did not, for he persisted in the forbidden caresses until brought to a sudden halt by a knocking at the door.

"There!" she gasped in a loud whisper. "I knew it! Oh, I knew it! What shall I do? Quick!"

Jim's own presence of mind was somewhat dis-

other stepped to the door, opened it and confronted his father.

Mr. Ferris banged the door behind him, took two steps into the room and looked carefully about before he paid any attention to the too demonstrative greeting of his son and heir. Then he shook hands as stiffly as possible. He had evidently been moving faster than was his wont and he puffed loudly as he sank into a chair directly facing the still swaying curtains.

"I got your wire at my hotel," he said. "When?" asked James in a painful effort to gain time.

"The elder Ferris pulled out a great gold watch. "Sixteen minutes ago," he replied. "Why do you ask? Didn't you expect me?"

"No—that is—"

"Why, what else did you think I'd do?"

"Oh, of course I expected you, father, and of course I'm awfully glad you've come. Oh, I'm delighted to see you! But I—the fact is, I didn't expect you quite so soon; not just quite so soon, you see."

"Well, I came to this town a day earlier than I expected, and now I'm ready to hear what you've got to say for yourself."

He settled back in his chair, looking like a judge who, after an expected verdict, has just asked the prisoner whether he has any adequate reason to advance against the pronouncing of sentence.

Jim fidgeted with some papers on the desk. "Well, well!" cried the father.

"I don't think I quite understand you," James admitted.

"Oh, yes, you do!" snapped Mr. Ferris. "You're over twenty-one, and I suppose you've some little sense left. Here I write to you, telling you that your roommate's appealed to me to save you from marrying a—"

He hesitated, and a flush of pride saved Jim's savor fair.

"Be careful, sir!" he cried.

"A—yes, sir!" the father continued. "I write you that, I say, and I get no answer. Then, when I'm nearly wild, I come a day earlier, find at my hotel your telegram saying that if I want to see you before you're married, I'd better come out at once; and now you say you don't understand me!"

"Well, sir—"

"Well, sir!" is that the way you talk to your father? Look here, Jim!" the elder man went on in a tone that softened not a little. "You know you've got me caught. When a son goes to know his power over his father, Heaven help the old man! But I've been a pretty good sort to you all along, haven't I?"

"Yes," he admitted, "harrying one thing."

"Well, come to that later on—that one thing. But I have been a good sort, haven't I?"

Jim cast a furtive, fearful glance at the curtain, and then nodded.

"I've given you nearly everything you wanted—nearly."

"Yes."

"I've always tried to do my best for you—what I considered my best, even if it differed from your opinion of what was good?"

"Yes."

"And I mostly saw to it that it didn't differ too often. The dean even says I gave you too much money. But, at any rate, I hardly ever crossed you, and even when I thought you'd better join the firm last spring, I gave in and let you come on here in September for that post-graduate course!"

"Yes."

"Then don't you think I've some right to ask: you not to marry this—this woman?"

Again the undecided look at the curtain.

"You asked me not to marry once before."

"Oh, I'm coming to that. See here, you're well-to-do in your own right, but it's a sum that, with your bringing up, wouldn't last you five years. You're my sole heir—you know what that means—but, by thunder, if you marry this woman, I'll cut you off without another cent—I will, so help me!"

The elder man brought down a huge fist upon the desk; but Jim gathered courage from the curtains.

"What would you think of a man," he slowly and distinctly asked, "who gave up a woman he had told he loved for a treat like that? Candidly, now, what would you think of him?"

As Mr. Ferris, senior, would probably have put it, his bluff was called.

"Oh, hang it, Jim!" he said in a voice that trembled, "you've got me by the neck, and you know it. Is it fair? Look here, I say: a year ago I foolishly objected to your proposal of a long engagement to Bet Burton. You talked back, and I lost my temper with you for the first time in my life. I said you should never marry her. Then I was sorry, for I liked the girl, though I thought you both too young. But I was too stubborn to back down or show that I was sorry—and this is what I get for it! Well, I say I'm sorry now. Jim, you swore you loved that girl. Is that all over so soon? If not, in Heaven's name, marry her now with my blessing! Only drop this chorus girl and marry her Burton for all of me to-morrow!"

But Jim's mouth straightened.

"It's too late," he said grimly, looking again, and with added nervousness, towards the curtain.

"Too late?" shouted the father. "Do you mean to say—What are you looking at those curtains for? What have you got in that room? Jim, there's somebody there. Don't lie to me! There's a woman there!"

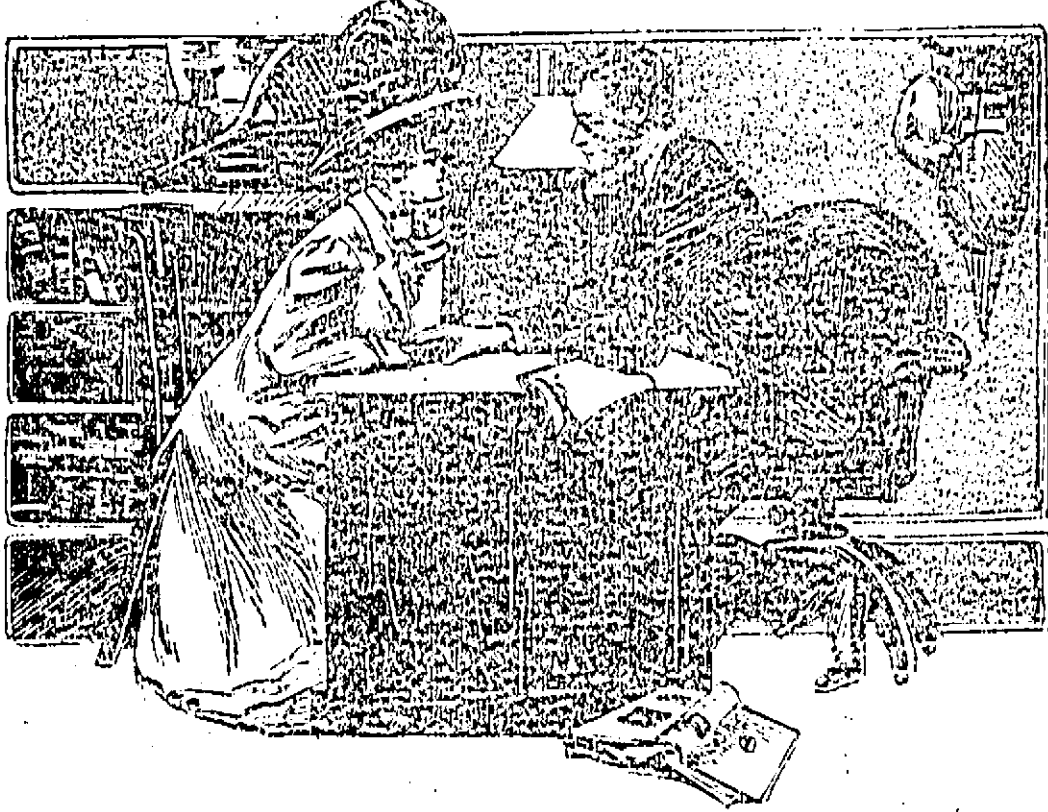

Both men had sprung to their feet when the portieres parted and Jim stepped forward to take the hand of the flushed and trembling little girl with the big, dark eyes.

"Father," he said, "you'll have to forgive that chorus girl game. There never was a chorus girl."

But the older man, though vaguely smiling, was too thunderstruck clearly to understand.

"And this," he managed, however, to cry, "is little Bet Burton!"

"This," corrected his son, "is Mrs. James Ferris."

"LOOKING LONG INTO EACH OTHER'S FRIGHTENED FACE"

"I should think they would be now," she pouted. "But then I wish you were playing this year."

"Because?"

"Because then Harvard would win."

"Hurrah for the Yale girl! I didn't do such wonders last year. But this is a conversion with a vengeance. Would you really rather have us win than have me with you?"

"That's not a fair question. And it's almost time for bed. He looked about, a trifle at a loss. Then—

"If you don't mind," he hesitantly began in the same startled voice, "in there's where I bunk, back of those curtains. It's rather messy—"

Again the knock.

"Oh, I don't mind anything!"—waited the girl. "Only hurry!"

With one stride Jim slipped her behind the portieres, speedily drew them together, and with an

that the university, as it is, is a mighty power for religious education, that if we will cooperate with its life, serve in harmony with its methods, we may supplement its work, complement its endeavors, and so enter into the largest, most splendid opportunity for the religious education of young men and women, the lifting of the eyes of the world, and the gift of the spirit of God living to those who are to be the leaders of tomorrow."

SPIRIT OF RELIGION AT THE UNIVERSITY

University of Today As Religious Now As in Sixteenth Century, Meeting Needs of Modern Life. (Special to THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Feb. 18.—The University is as truly religious in the twentieth century as it was in the sixteenth or the eighteenth. The fortunate thing is that instead of seeking to express that religious spirit in terms of the sixteenth century, instead of elaborately preserving archaic forms of language, the universities are content to express their religion in terms of life.

This was the significant declaration of the Rev. Henry F. Cape, general secretary of the Religious Education association in an address on "Newer Ideals of Religious Education in Universities before the third annual conference of church workers in state universities now in session at the University of Wisconsin.

Universities Meet Modern Needs. "One striking characteristic of American university life is its homeliness in contemporary living," continued the speaker. "No matter how proud such an institution may be of the important ivy on its walls, medieval turrets can not hide the modern spirit; it seems itself as a servant of the present times, as first of all concerned with men as they are, with the problems of the city, with sanitation, with social living. Whenever it looks backward it is only that it may pull forward; that it may raise leaders who will do the work of the present. Because the modern university is thus conscious of the life about it, in this seeking to prepare men for the highest service in their own day, it has what is essentially a religious mission."

Sermons Every Day in Classroom

"In the measure that our universities are touched with the social spirit, that they provide the natural atmosphere for the idealistic vision and hope, they express and actually engage in the work of religious education in their own way. It was some sense of this that led a student to say that it was hardly worth while to go to chapel because one could hear sermons a whole lot better in the classroom. The very atmosphere of the oratory in the best and most valuable sense is being constantly felt in the laboratory."

"Thank God, the university men of North America are idealists—others who their brains would be in business—and as long as our young men are in the hands of idealists, while they themselves are in the years when visions are seen, I believe they are ultimately safe spiritually.

Universities Laboratories of Life

"We think of the university as a laboratory. It becomes, first of all, a laboratory of living for the students. It trains to habits of right living, not only in power to read books, but to handle tools, to read men, to master the elements, to cooperate with nature. The adoption of the laboratory principle has changed the campus crowd from bloodless bookworms to dynamic human beings. Along with this new life has come higher demands on life. The greater the laboratory demands the higher the life demands. Standards of students living, conduct, morality, have changed markedly for the better. They are not up with the level of the dreamer but they are far above the tide mark of the materialist."

Freedom of Teaching Necessary.

"We ought to face the future, to have faith in the freedom of the truth, in the sure victory of the right; to know that so long as our universities stand for that freedom and for high personal ideals, we can be proud of our part in properly done, assured of the religious development of young men and women under their care. The important thing is for those outside also to realize their part, to see

FARMERS RECEIVE RECOGNITION FOR CONTRIBUTING TO THE BUILDING OF AGRICULTURE.

Madison, Wis.—Last week for the second time in the history of agriculture three farmers were given special recognition for their efforts in upbuilding agriculture throughout the United States. This recognition was given by the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin. The testimonials were presented to George C. Hill of Rosendale, Wis.; Herman A. Briggs of Delavan, Wis., and Seaman A. Knapp of Washington, D. C.

George C. Hill has rendered eminent services to agriculture in Wisconsin as a leader in the organization of farmers' clubs, as an institute worker and as one who has advocated higher ideals and thus elevated standards of many farmers throughout the state. He was born in Connecticut in 1837 and settled in Fond du Lac county, Wis., in 1858. He had only a common school education, but was unusually inclined with high ideals. For 15 years he traveled through the state as a farmers' institute lecturer, spreading correct ideas of dairy farming. He early engaged in breeding pure-bred cattle, in which business he has achieved a success of country wide importance.

Herman A. Briggs is a typical product of the rural conditions of this state. He early became interested in the live stock business and took up the breeding of horses. In 1887 he went to France and imported some of the best Percheron stock and urged this horse for Wisconsin farms. Through farmers' institutes, with which he has long been connected, and through his relations to the College of Agriculture, Mr. Briggs has rendered the state high service in promoting the development of horse breeding in this state.

Seaman A. Knapp was born and educated in New York, graduating at Union College in 1856 with the degree of A. B. After several positions as professor he settled on a farm in Iowa in 1866. He became an important agricultural writer and edited a journal published at Cedar Rapids. He was one of the organizers of the first Iowa Stock Breeders' association and

In 1880 became professor of agriculture and for a time president of the Iowa State college at Ames. In 1886 he removed to Louisiana, where he was engaged in developing better methods of southern farming, including the culture of rice and other products. In 1898 he was sent to Japan, China and the Philippines as an agricultural explorer for the department of agriculture at Washington, and as a result introduced Japanese rice into the southwest. He was president of the Rice Growers' association from its organization in 1900 until 1908 and was largely instrumental in developing this important industry in the south. In 1901 he inaugurated under the United States department of agriculture the farmers' cooperative demonstration farm work in Texas, which work has now been extended over 12 states, with 375 agents in the field. During the season of 1909 over 15,000 farmers came directly in touch with these demonstrative farms. He has been recognized by the University of Wisconsin because of his great contribution to improved agriculture through the development of the demonstration system of teaching better farm methods. He holds the degrees of LL. D. from the Upper Iowa university, 1882; LL. D. from the Baylor University, Waco, Tex., 1908, and D. S. C. from Iowa State college, 1909.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janeville Daily Gazette, February 18, 1870.—Jottings.—The ladies reception at Lappin's hall last evening, was one of the most brilliant and drowsy affairs of the kind that ever came off in Janeville. The company consisted of not less than one hundred and fifty guests who assembled on the invitation extended to them, and the second of the kind was given by the ladies. The dancing commenced at 8 o'clock, and the music was furnished by the band of the city. The ladies were dressed in the latest style, and the gentlemen in the most elegant attire. The evening was spent in the most enjoyable manner, and the ladies were very much pleased with the result. There were several prizes given to the winners of the dancing, and the evening was a great success.

DYSPEPSIA, GAS, HEARTBURN AND ALL STOMACH DISTRESS VANISHES

A little Diapiesin makes your out-of-order Stomach feel fine in five minutes.

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from indigestion, Dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking some Diapiesin. If your stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the stomach to do its work not with drastic drugs, but a reinforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak stomachs should take a little Diapiesin occasionally, and there will be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, sour risings, gas on stomach, or belching of undigested food, headaches, dizziness or sick stomach, and besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your blood with noxious odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking a little Diapiesin.

Go to your druggist and get a 50-cent case of Diapiesin now, and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

THE IDEAL FARM ENGINE.

The Jack Junior is a simple, practical, durable, water-cooled engine that can be relied upon to give more than its full rated power and to run satisfactorily under any weather conditions, whenever power is required.

A small engine can often be used to advantage where the amount of power is small, thus saving the expense of operating a large engine in many cases.

Used with a small pump Jack for pumping water in place of a windmill, or running a cream separator, milking machine, churn, washing machine, any ordinary windmill pump, grind stone, small crane sheller, or small ice cream freezer and for many other purposes it furnishes an abundance of power.

The advantage of having a practical one-horse-power engine like the "Jack Junior," which can be moved from place to place so easily, will be appreciated by all who have occasion to use gasoline engines.

We have any size engine, larger than the "Jack Junior," which you might wish. Also Pumps, Tanks, and Windmills. Well Drilling.

Price complete, $65.00.

Business Courtesy.
The adage, "Courtesy costs nothing," would, if true, offer sufficient reason to insure its observance by practically every member of the commercial community; it being fairly obvious to most of us that courtesy is an excellent lubricant for the machinery of business, however, requires a very considerable expenditure of mental effort, which very few of us are capable of sustaining at all times.

A Democratic Capital.
Here in Washington, all men are equal. Even the diplomats who come here from abroad soon get the spirit. They go skating and horseback riding without ceremony. They have the same rights as everybody else, but no more. And the result usually is picturesque and cosmopolitan. Exceedingly democratic and informal is the capital of the United States.—Washington Post.

DID YOU EVER SEE THE NEW GALL CURE COLLAR?

It is without question the best hair stuffed collar made. It is made by taking a pad of genuine curled hair 5 inches thick formed over a layer of cotton, into a pad. The collar is built over this hair pad in such a way that the curled hair pad is separated from the skin of the horse by the leather or fabric of which the face of the collar is made. The result is that it is impossible to gall a horse if the collar fits.

The curled hair pad will hold its shape until the collar is worn out. The sweat from the animal will rot straw or cotton, but curled hair never changes. A Gall Cure Collar is constantly ventilating itself, thereby giving it double life.

A Gall Cure Collar with russet leather face, all things sewed, faced with Gall Cure Curled Hair pads with cloth lined; sole leather caps, double strength throat, hand finished, about 15-inch draft, $3.50.

Gall Cure Collar, same as above, 17-inch draft, $4.00.
Truck Case Gall Cure Collar, 17-inch draft, $4.50.
